3. Approval of June 26, 2009 Minutes

Director Wall asked for a motion to approve minutes of the previous meeting of June 26, 2009. Director Stenning moved:

TO ACCEPT THE MINUTES OF THE JUNE 26, 2009 MEETING
AS PRESENTED.

Major Quinn seconded the motion. The motion passed unanimously in the affirmative.

4. Discussion of Funding Options for the FY2010 Edward Byrne Memorial Justice

Assistance Formula Grant (JAG)-David LeDoux, Public Safety Grants Administration Office

Director Wall stated that the purpose of today' s meeting is for the committee to decide on the process to distribute the funds rather than distribute the funds themselves. Last year matters were complicated by the addition of significant funds from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA). These funds are not part of the equation this year. Director Wall asked Mr. LeDoux to provide an orientation.

Mr. LeDoux directed the committee's attention to the chart he distributed (Attachment 1 to the original of these minutes). The state's award is $1,383,926. The Public Safety Grants Administration Office retains (PSGAO) 10 percent for planning and administration for a total of $138,392. This leaves a balance of $1,245,534. The under-$10,000 amount is $76,958, which the Local Law Enforcement Planning Committee decides on. This amount is for the city and town police departments. Subgrants are subject to the variable pass-through rate set by the federal government, which is 43.13 percent. As a result, this earmarks $664,569 for statewide distribution and for the Steering Committee to decide on. The Federal government grants direct awards in excess of $10,000 to units of local government, which is outlined on the handout. The PSGAO does not administer these funds. The under-$10,000 is the balance of the 40 percent.

The other 60 percent is the amount that goes to the state. This information is outlined on the handout. The total amount that is awarded within the State of Rhode Island to include the money administered by the PSGAO and the over $10,000 direct award is $2.1 million.

The statewide portion is $664,569. The yellow sheet that was distributed (Attachment 2 to the original of these minutes) is a summary of what was awarded last year in both formula and recovery act funds. $5.7 million was awarded to the State of Rhode Island from ARRA plus formula funds. The previous strategic plan that was developed in 2002/2003 funded only three projects. In 2005 the federal grant changed to the Byrne/JAG Grant. The federal government provided the money to the states up front, and then the funding was cut dramatically.

Under JAG, the federal government did not require a multi-year plan, so the PSGAO continued to fund current projects. Last year the federal government required the PSGAO to devise a process to decide on a strategic plan and how to fund the additional stimulus monies. They wanted the states to develop a plan about how funding decisions were made. Mr. LeDoux distributed the Byrne/JAG Stimulus Funding Survey and Results (Attachment 3 to the original of these minutes). A survey was created based on the 2002 survey, and it was adjusted to reflect the additional monies.

The first part is the survey, and the second part is the results, which is what the Steering Committee used to craft the Request for Proposals (RFP). The PSGAO needed this to go out to RFP. The handout has both the RFP and the application that was used.

The ARRA grant was open to a wide scope of agencies, and that became a question.

Should the funding be limited only to state agencies? It was decided that the funds should be limited to only state agencies within the criminal justice system. Mr. LeDoux sent the RFP out to all these agencies, including public safety offices at universities and colleges and agencies within the criminal justice system. The application was also placed on the PSGAO website, based on the survey and how the RFP would be advertised.

Criminal Justice Steering Committee

June 15,2010

Director Wall stated that the survey found that 70 percent of respondents stated that funding should be limited to state agencies. The survey was distributed to Policy Board members, because they are the decision makers, in accordance with Rhode Island General Law. Not everyone responded (23 surveys were returned). The information from the survey was used to craft the RFP. Based on the survey, the Steering Committee also made decisions about eligibility for funding. One of the decisions was to set aside money for CJIS-related projects.

Ms. Hurst asked about the two surveys and if they reflect setting priorities. Mr. LeDoux responded that after the original survey was completed, there was a discussion about bringing in outsiders to rank the priorities. Mr. LeDoux directed the committee's attention to Attachment 3. The tables following the survey are the results of the review of proposals by a five-member committee; none of whom had a vested interest in the proposed projects. There was a point total determined by the review committee. There were 26 proposals to consider, and 16 of the 26 were recommended for funding. Then, those 16 projects totaled more than the available funding, so they had to be pared down.

Director Wall summarized the process: The review committee meeting took place once the proposals had been submitted. They were reviewed by the five-member panel, which came back with recommendations to pass on to the PSGAO Policy Board. The Steering Committee decided the process to submit applications.

Ms. Hurst asked if the Steering Committee has ever done a strategic plan that involved long-term planning to consider the most important priorities to fund. Then the Policy Board could fund programs that meet these priorities for five to ten years out. She said she does not see a clear policy in terms of goals for the state's criminal justice system.

Mr. LeDoux responded that they did not develop a two to three-year strategic plan. The PSGAO took the information provided to them and looked at the two to three projects that rose to the top as the best programs. There were several project proposals. that could be lumped into the priorities. Law enforcement was the top priority with 40 percent of the funding going directly to law enforcement. That includes the Rhode Island State Police Providence Police Neighborhood Response Team, the two projects at the Rhode Island Municipal Police Training Academy, and the project at the University of Rhode Island are all law enforcement related. Law enforcement was at the top, recidivism reduction was second, and drug treatment third. There was not a specific document that was a five-to ten-year strategic plan.

Ms. Hurst stated that if the Steering Committee's responsibility is to develop a process, then the clarification or transparency of the thinking within the committee is that the committee states the priority is specifically recidivism, and that the committee solicits projects that can make a direct connection to that. One of the great things about Rhode

June 15, 2010

Island is that this committee can sit around one table and discuss and share common goals. No matter how great a proposal may be, it does not matter unless it addresses one of these priorities.

Colonel Doherty stated that last year this committee was up against time constraints and looming deadlines. This year it may be a good idea to develop a strategic plan with goals and objectives.

Major Quinn suggested that since it has been five years since the strategic plan was developed, that it may be time to revisit developing a new plan. The process was hastened last year by the federal government's timeline. However, that process bore out some tremendous results, and more money was distributed than ever before. The programs included prosecution, collaborative programs, drug court, recidivism reduction, etc. The major objectives of the criminal justice system were addressed. There was a transparent process, and the committee did look at clear objectives, what was good for all, and how one project impacted the other projects.

Director Wall reiterated that last year, the committee was under time constraints. Is the committee under time constraints this year? Mr. LeDoux replied that no, the federal government requires that the PSGAO submit an application, which has already been done. They special condition the grant until the states have an approved plan. Byrne is a four-year grant that goes back to the previous October 1st. There are no time constraints, but local law enforcement cannot get its money until the state plan is approved, because they are approved jointly as one plan. The LLEPC has met and decided how to spend its portion of the money. The formula is based on census and Part I crimes, but they have made their decisions now. No one is in dire need of the funds at this moment. There are no official time constraints. However, because it is summer and people are off for vacations, it would be helpful to decide on the process today. The committee should look at a timeline so that grantees have sufficient time to submit applications. Last year we had short timelines to get stimulus money out into the field as soon as possible. However, more than 50 percent of projects approved last year have not even started yet. We do not need to rush, but proceed in a timely fashion to include all steps in the process, the RFP, the review committee meeting, develop and submit rankings, etc. This committee should anticipate meeting two more times before submitting recommendations to the Policy Board.

Ms. Holley, Legal Counsel to the Department of Public Safety, stated that she had some concerns. She said she agrees with Ms. Hurst that the best direction is to have something more than prioritization of programs, but rather a statewide strategic plan. She supports starting down that path, because it will make the committee's work easier down the road.

The federal government is really looking at efficacy, and the committee was not able to do that last year. The committee did not have performance measures, and did not know if programs actually worked. The committee is always going to be up against time constraints, so it would be important to make an effort to develop a strategic plan. She asked if there is federal funding available to help develop a strategic plan. There is an issue with ARRA projects that have not begun yet. The programs were supposed to be "shovel ready" projects, and this body has to answer to the Governor's Office as to why they have not started. Ms. Holley asked Mr. LeDoux about the $76,958 that goes to LLEPC from the Byrne/JAG Grant. He stated that the LLEPC uses all the money to fund statewide projects for law enforcement, such as funding for the Municipal Police Academy, hate crimes trainings, the precious metals database at the Attorney General's Office, multijurisdictional drug operations, etc. The Municipal Police Academy received two awards to replace Glenn Shibley's position, and following a job task analysis, hiring a curriculum coordinator to develop a curriculum for the Academy. The Training Coordinator position is needed pennanently, but the curriculum coordinator is a one-time, limited position until the project is completed. Director Wall asked about specific requirements are in the Byrne/JAG grant. Does it outline a decision-making process to follow? Mr. LeDoux answered that they suggest evidence-based projects, but they are not required yet. In the sub-grant application, the PSGAO required goals, objectives, and performance measures. Mr.

June 15,2010

LeDoux stated that he interprets evidence-based component as the performance measures provided by subgrantees
in their progress reports.

Director Wall asked about the evidence-based workshop held recently in Philadelphia and what information was provided by the federal government. Both Mr. Mongeau and Mr. LeDoux tried to get that information at the conference, and the conference organizers could not give them a specific definition. Director Wall asked if they could try to get something in writing from the Department of Justice, so the committee can utilize that information for this process. He further stated that the government put the tenn out to the states without giving information on how to implement this.

Ms. Hurst talked about a program at the Public Defender's Office to reduce recidivism.

Housing is provided and supplemented with services from an attorney, social worker, and community outreach worker to deal with the legal and social problems that cause people to come back to Court. They have been unable to get programs up and running due to barriers in the state with regard to hiring. They need a person to do this job, because they have found that people who received the above services, including employment counseling and finding a job have not returned to prison. If there is not complete follow through for each individual toward the goal of reducing recidivism, then they should not be receiving the grant money. The real outcome should be the higher priority that the

June 15,2010

Steering Committee sets that shows a decrease in recidivism or actual crime prevention in a particular neighborhood.

Director Stenning asked if the committee or PSGAO has asked the federal government for a definition of evidence-based programming. He stated that three years ago SAMSA stated that an MHRH project had to be evidence-based, although at that time their programs were performance-based. Mr. Mongeau responded that the federal government is not requiring evidence based programming yet, and that there is no clear definition of the term. Director Wall said there is not a mandate for evidence-based programs and states are not required to implement them at this time. Mr. Mongeau added that there is money available through the National Criminal Justice Association (NCJA) to provide states with technical assistance to develop strategic plans. Director Wall asked the committee to refer to Page 4 of the FY2010 Byrne/JAG State Solicitation, that states: "States are strongly encouraged to use JAG funding to support their existing statewide strategic plan. .if such a plan does not now exist, states must develop and undertake a strategic planning process, using a community-based engagement model, in order to guide spending under this and future fiscal year allocations. Training and technical assistant (ITA) is available from BJA's TTA providers to assist states with the development of their strategic planning process and their plan to fund evidence-based projects." He stated that the threshold question will be whether the process this committee used last year is sufficient to consider this the foundation to develop the FY2010 solicitation, or whether the committee needs to develop a different process. He asked if the committee is going to reaffirm last year's survey for this year, or will the committee decide that this survey does not meet the needs for a strategic planning process.

Deputy Coyne expressed his concern that this year's process not take too much time. He said that if the current survey is acceptable, then the committee's long-term goal should be to develop a written strategic plan to lobby the new Governor and Attorney General.

Ms. Olivelli stated that 23 surveys do not represent a significant statistical model. Mr.

Burke said that last year's process could be considered a strategic plan. He asked if it could take as long as six months to develop an RFP. Mr. LeDoux responded that it may be difficult for the local departments that are depending on getting this money soon.

There is some time for this process. The grants are currently earning interest and at some point, the interest earned, which in the ARRA grant is $15,000, will have to be split based on new variable pass through. If there are any projects that could not operate because the 2010 money is not available, the committee could use the interest money to fund projects for a short time. None of the state funded projects, except the URI project, would be without funding in the short term. The Drug Court, for example: has spent $140,207

Criminal Justice Steering Committee

June 15,2010

leaving a balance of $216,793. Therefore, the program will require an extension beyond

June 30th

Ms. Olivelli noted that several agencies will have carry-over money.

Ms. Hurst said that she sees prioritization of programs rather than prioritization of goals.

Mr. LeDoux responded that these are JAG program areas that can be funded. Priority is given to particular projects, but it is not part of a strategic plan. He suggested developing a compromise so this committee can set out a couple of goals to move to a strategic plan.

Director Wall reported on a House Finance Committee hearing. The Chair of the committee expressed his skepticism of the transparency involved in developing this group of projects. The process was explained to him, and he asked to see all the documents that were developed tracking the decision-making process. The point being that this committee needs to consider what it believes to be a transparent process. The committee needs to consider the court of public opinion about what is a transparent process. Director Wall suggested that since the Justice Department is offering technical assistance, the committee is not of one mind regarding what a strategic planning process should look like, and the committee wants to be mindful of time constraints, he therefore suggested a consultant review with the committee the process used. If it is a good process, utilize it again, or recommend that another process be adopted. Director Wall asked if someone would like to make a motion to this effect. Major Quinn asked if this year's solicitation narrative is similar to last year's. Mr. LeDoux responded that it is but with more detail. For example, the federal government is now requiring a waiver from the local police departments that the money received is supporting law enforcement. Major Quinn said that last year the committee described the planning process to the federal government, and they approve it and gave Rhode Island the funds. They found the planning process acceptable. Jamia McDonald, of the Governor's Office of Economic Recovery, agreed with the committee's process and she attended the planning meetings.

Major Quinn felt that the committee should get its goals in line as it is important for the future in developing a strategic plan. The current process is acceptable to the federal government.

Director Stenning read from the Byrne/JAC solicitation (Attachment 4) the same paragraph Director Wall previously read above. Mr. Mongeau reported that this specific sentence was not in the 2009 RFP (see Page 2 of the solicitation).

June 15,2010

Director Wall said that this is what he is calling the committee's fork in the road: Is last year's approved process going to be used again this year, should the committee develop a new process, or request technical assistance from the federal government to develop a strategic plan.

Director Stenning suggested seeking technical assistance, but it should not stop the committee from submitting a plan in a timely manner. The strategic plan could then be implemented for the FY2all solicitation. Ms. Hurst noted that if a strategic plan is in place it will help the committee with more specific guidelines, and the committee could pre-solicit proposals before funds are awarded to the state.

Director Wall asked what this means for the FY2ala solicitation. Ms. Hurst suggested using last year's planning process, but that the application should state this and that the committee is also actively developing a strategic plan for the future. Major Quinn suggested refining the plan rather than developing a new process. He suggested using last year's process for this year. The committee has the original plan but that it is time to revisit and refine it for the future.

Mr. LeDoux stated that the committee has used a strategic planning process that was endorsed by the federal government. He felt that Ms. Hurst makes a valid point that there is not a specific four- to five-page document that is the state's strategic plan. He said the committee can meet to develop such a plan, but it cannot be accomplished for this year's distribution of funds. The committee can request technical assistance, and the federal government may suggest sending out a second survey.

Director Wall then asked if the committee would like to reaffirm the process used last year, and if so, should a new survey be sent out or should the results of last year's survey be used.

Ms. Olivelli asked what the timetable would be to request technical assistance to review and approve a plan. If someone from the outside approves the process, would this take too long and then create a problem for sub-grantees.

Major Quinn said that last year the committee tried to get the community involved, but the committee was up against time constraints. Ms. Olivelli suggested requesting technical assistance and using those recommendations only if it can be completed in a timely manner. If this would take too long, she recommended using last year's process.

Ms. Hurst agreed. She said the reviewer may say that the process

currently in place could serve as a foundation for a formal strategic plan.

June 15,2010

Director Stenning felt the committee was making this task more complicated than it needed to be. The Finance Chair's comments were more about the process and why the committee limited applications only to state agencies.

Director Wall said he wants the committee to feel comfortable with the process used last year and that the committee can support and defend it to others.

Major Quinn reminded the group that considering the amount of work and time constraints involved, the committee did a great job. Ms. Olivelli said someone may ask why technical assistance was not requested because time is not an issue this year.

Director Wall recommended directing the PSGAO staff to contact the federal government to provide feedback on the process currently in place, and if required, to develop a new process going forward subject to the constraints of time and the committee's ability to get money out to projects in a reasonable amount of time.

Ms. Hurst recommended that the committee proceed with obtaining technical assistance to help revise the strategic plan for the next five years if it can be completed in a timely manner and to synthesize from last year's process the beginnings of implementing a strategic plan now. Her suggestion is to use last year's plan as a first step for a formal strategic plan if it can be accomplished in a timely manner.

Mr. Burke suggested using last year's plan this year, and secondly, to seek assistance to refine the plan over the next several months for FY2011 funding.

Director Wall stated that this motion is different from Ms. Hurst's motion, because it preserves the status quo, whereas Ms. Hurst's motion states that if time permits the committee will utilize technical assistance to develop a plan for FY2010. This is as a result of the comment from the House Finance Committee. This committee should validate the process if time permits.

Director Stenning asked if someone could define if the committee is endorsing the status quo of the surveyor the entire process, including not allowing non-profits to participate.

Ms. Holley expressed concern about using last year's survey for purposes of ARRA, as some of people are no longer in this role. The survey was on Survey Monkey and not difficult to re-issue. The committee needs to be concerned about using last year's results by people who are not in the process this year. The committee should use a new survey for purposes of transparency.

June 15, 2010

Director Wall stated that there have several ideas and suggestions made; however, the committee has to come to a decision. The first option is for the committee to use the existing survey and the results of that. A second option is to do that and seek technical assistance for the FY2011 process. A third option is to look at time constraints, contact the technical assistance providers, and find out how long it would take for them to review last year's process and state that this is an acceptable process for FY2010. The fourth option would be for the technical assistance providers to provide an alternative process that can be implemented in a timely manner for FY2010 funding.

Director Wall

requested a motion.

Ms. Hurst made the following motion:

TO OBTAIN TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE AND ADVICE IF THAT CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED WITHIN A SHORT PERIOD OF TIME
IF THIS WILL PRODUCE A BETTER OPTION THAN USING THE EXISTING SURVEY AND TO AUTHORIZE THE PSGAO TO CONTACT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WITH THIS REQUEST.

Major Quinn seconded the motion.

Director Wall asked for discussion. He recommended providing the federal government with what the committee has already done and ask whether the FY2009 process is acceptable.

Mr. LeDoux stated that if the committee sets aside two months for this process, that will be mid-August. He stated that the Drug Court will not have money going into the new fiscal year. Director Wall asked about interest earned on grant funds, and Mr. LeDoux stated that there is not enough money in interest to carry the program for very long using interest earned.

Director Wall asked if Mr. LeDoux is saying that the motion on the floor will not work

because the Drug Court will have to halt its operations. It was pointed out that at this juncture a decision on the motion will not affect the available funds for the Drug Court in the short term.

Director Wall called the question on the motion. There are eight voting members present.

THE VOTE WAS SEVEN MEMBERS VOTING IN THE AFFIRMATIVE AND ONE MEMBER VOTING AGAINST. THE MOTION PASSED.

Director Wall stated that the committee would reconvene as soon as the PSGAO is able to provide the results of their contact with the technical assistance providers. Mr. LeDoux added that he anticipates that the Byrne/JAG Grant funding will probably not increase in future years. Therefore, the sixteen currently funded projects will not all be able to be funded. Therefore, a strategic plan will be important. In response to a question from Ms.

Hurst, Director Wall stated that BJA will help provide guidance on the types of projects that could be funded with other grant funds, such as homeland security money.

5. New Business: There was none.

6. Adjourn:

Director Stenning made a motion:

TO ADJOURN THE MEETING.

Deputy Coyne seconded the motion, The motion carried unanimously in the affirmative.

The meeting adjourned at 10:08 a.m.
